I am very concerned about the use of cell phones during flight on an airplane. So many people have cell phones now and even if only 50% used their phones on a flight it would be chaotic and unnerving to the other passengers. There is enough stress during flight with the use of computers, electronic games, ipods, etc. causing distraction and disruption. It would be like having the audio at each of the seats playing a different station. I have a hard time dealing with someone at the next table in a restaurant on a cell phone, let alone someone sitting next to me on an airplane. I am also concerned with the safe operation of an airplane with cell phones being used during flight. How safe would we really be?
Please do not add to the chaos in another little corner of our world.
